

NEWS

The most beautiful women in the world according to science

Science never lies, and in this case it says that the most beautiful women in the world are the following.

You will surely be surprised at the positions in which some Hollywood stars are, but the same happened with the list of the most handsome men in the world.

Science has long since determined who the most handsome men in the world were . It was not a personal opinion, but the golden ratio and the celebrities who came closest to her. Now, thanks to that, we also know who are the most beautiful women in the world in 2019.

The plastic surgeon Julian De Silva, the same one who carried out the previous analysis thanks to a computer program, has officially established which are the most beautiful celebrities of our planet.

But as with the men's list, the female brings many surprises , especially in terms of the positions in which we found some names that we all thought were going to be higher.

The great Hollywood beauties like Scarlett Johansson , Beyoncé, or Amber Heard are part of the top 10, but according to this analysis, Bella Hadid is the woman who is closest to the golden number.

If we remember the previous study, the list was established following what is called the golden ratio. Already in Ancient Greece it was believed that the number 1,618 was perfection , and works of art for example tried to follow that pattern.

De Silva with his computer program analyzed the faces of celebrities and depending on the percentage of approach they had to that number , they manage to enter the top 10 or not. With that, these are the 10 most beautiful women in the world.

1. Bella Hadid - 94.35%

